

Public Interest Disclosure (PID) Victimisation

Under the Public Interest Disclosure (PID) Act 2003, it is unlawful to victimise a person who has made a Public Interest Disclosure.

Disclaimer

The material in this brochure is not intended to be legal advice. The Commissioner expressly disclaims any liability in respect to anything done or not done to any person in reliance upon any of the contents of this publication.

The Government of Western Australia

www.wa.gov.au

March 2025

What is a valid PID?

The PID Act allows a person to make disclosures of improper or corrupt conduct by public authorities.

A PID must be made to a proper authority and nobody else. Disclosing public interest information to the wrong persons or organisation may result in the disclosure not being protected under the PID Act.

For example if it is about a police officer, the PID Act requires the disclosure be made either to the Commissioner of Police or the Corruption and Crime Commission (CCC). For a judicial officer, it must be made to the Chief Justice of the court where that judicial officer discharges their duties.

To find out who is the appropriate PID officer, go to the PID Contact Officer directory on the wa.gov.au website.

Where does the protection apply?

It is unlawful to victimise (seek reprisal or retaliation against) someone because they have made a PID and the protection applies to anyone who has made a valid PID.

Making a complaint

Under the PID Act, the WA Commissioner for Equal Opportunity is able to investigate complaints of PID victimisation, and a person who believes they have been victimised because they made a valid PID can lodge a complaint with the WA Equal Opportunity Commission.

Complainants are obligated to show they were victimised because they made a PID.

The incident or incidents in the complaint must have occurred within the 12 months previous to the date the complaint was lodged.

In some circumstances the Commissioner may decide there is good reason, or good cause, to include incidents that occurred more than 12 months before the complaint is lodged.

For more information about PIDs see: Public interest disclosures in Western Australia.

How to contact the Commission

By telephone

General enquiries: 9216 3900
Training courses: 9216 3927
Country callers: 1800 198 149

By email

eoc@eoc.wa.gov.au

Website

www.eoc.wa.gov.au

Address

Albert Facey House
469 Wellington Street
Perth WA 6000

Interpreter service: 13 14 50

How to follow the Commission

@WA.EOC

@EOC.WA